Case Study In Disaster Response

In a bus terminal, water is gushing from the fourth floor to the basement, causing the power to fail and the elevators to shut down. A sprinkler pipe had burst in a ladies bathroom flooding a 5 story commercial building. It happened on the January 2nd, a day many people had off after the holiday. TEAM MATTOS project manager Jerry Folkard and was on scene a 1/2 hour after the call came in, and the crew arrived an hour later. They deployed 164 air movers, 50 LGR dehumidifiers, and two 5000 desiccant machines to dry the areas. They also used a 500 KVA generator to power the floors, since the building was on backup electricity due to the power loss. This also required the SERVPRO teams to use the stairs to move all their equipment in place. The owner of the building was pleased with how quickly SERVPRO responded and restored his property and also with the dedication that the crew exhibited. ■

Taking care of possessions is as important as restoring the property

After a major disaster, the property may be saturated with water or permeated with smoke to such an extent that it affects many treasured possessions collected over time. Relocating contents salvaged from a home or business to our safe and secure warehouse is an integral component of our professional restoration services.

During storage, our certified technicians clean and deodorize possessions, restoring them to pre-damage condition. We then pack, tag, and inventory items until they are returned to the property owner.

Understanding the difficulty many customers face during a major disaster, we accommodate their needs during a move back.

TEAM MATTOS also will inventory contents before disasters such as fire, flood, theft, or vandalism strike. ■

In Our Customer's Words

"On Christmas Eve of 2008 I found that my furnace had a cracked pipe and was pouring soot into my home.

Jim Lawrence came to my home to inspect and Friday, December 26, you dispatched the cleaning crew of Sal and Stan. They performed their work as true professionals and explained what they were going to do and the expected results." -Steven P, Cranston

SERVPRO's Contents Inventory services involve:

- Developing a pre-loss list with the value of contents
- Writing detailed and accurate reports
- Providing better information to settle claims quicker
- Assisting with burden of proof for claims
- Providing peace of mind when you it's needed most!

Meet Our Service Crews

They're called on in the middle of the night, over the weekend, often in the bitter cold. They go into homes that have been burned out, or find themselves in two feet of water in flooded office buildings. They are the men and women who make up the 8 service crews of SERVPRO of Weymouth.

TEAM MATTOS technicians are highly skilled professionals, many of whom having received advanced training as Water Restoration Technicians (WRT), Applied Structural Drying Technicians (ASD), and Fire & Smoke Restoration Technicians (SRT) from the Institute of Inspection Cleaning and Restoration (IICRC). Whether your home or business is damaged from fire, smoke, or water, or if a property is in need of deodorization services or mold remediation, TEAM MATTOS technicians respond in people's time of need. They also perform a variety of services you may not have realized, including duct cleaning, emergency board up services, and document restoration. It takes dedication to return a property back, like it never even happened. ■

Bringing his professional expertise in mold remediation, HVAC systems cleaning and restoration, and "Green" cleaning, Enrique Quiñonez is one of the most experienced crew chiefs for TEAM MATTOS. He has worked in the field as a project supervisor and lead technician for five years and has received advanced training as a Water Restoration Technician (WRT), Applied Structural Drying Technician (ASD), and Fire & Smoke Restoration Technicians (SRT) from the Institute of Inspection Cleaning and Restoration (IICRC). With an advanced degree in architecture, he brings skill and a unique perspective to each restoration job. He lives in Roslindale with his wife and daughter. ■
